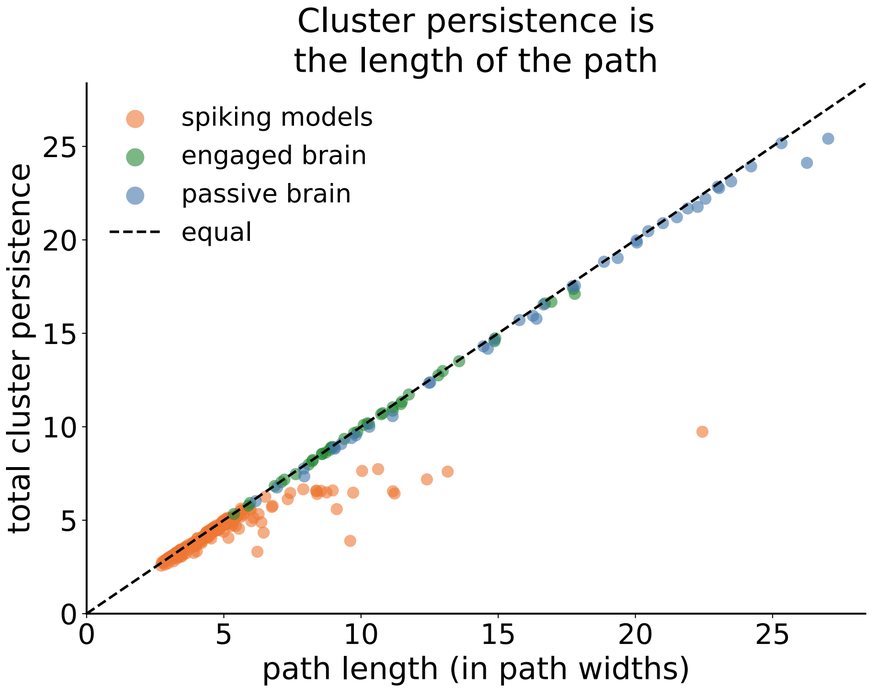
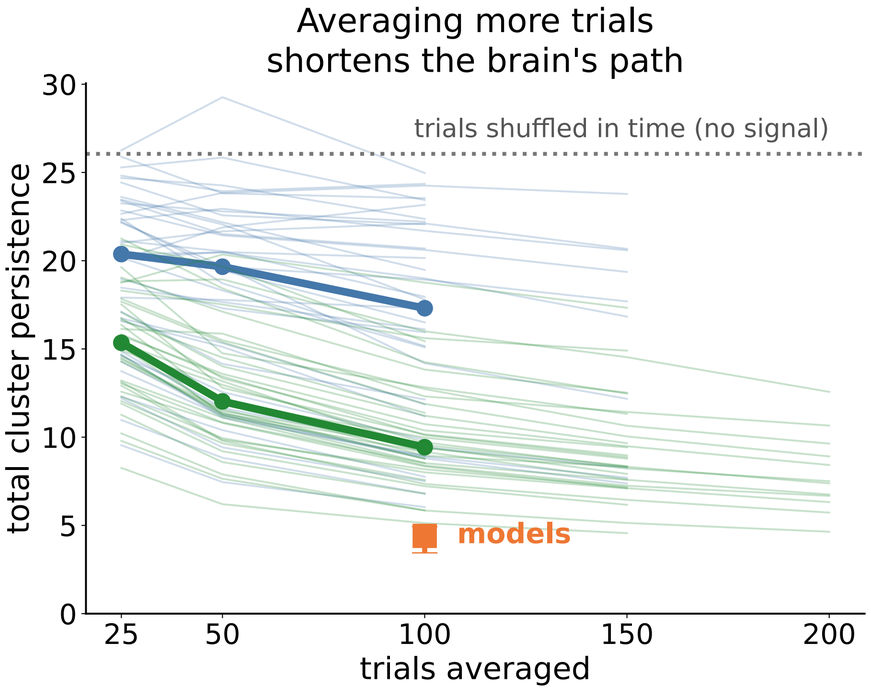
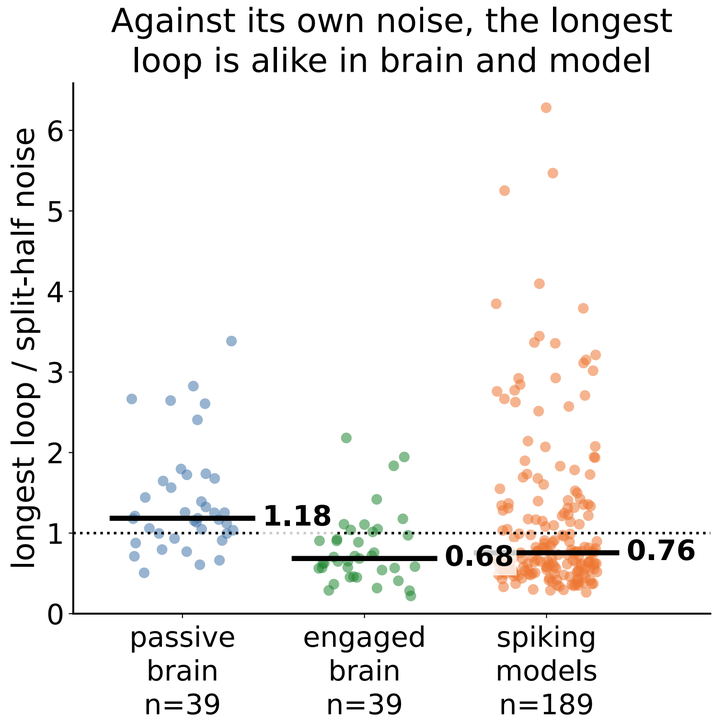
What separates brains from models is how smooth the average path is, not its loops







128 neurons. Left and right: each dot one brain population or trained network at 100 trials. Middle: each thin line one brain population (mean of 5 trial draws), thick lines medians where every population has the trials; models: median and quartiles at 100 trials (no model was rerun). Descriptive, no test.